Last Friday's closing price was 1269.8. In the 2 previous weeks, it was at 1279. It went down for two consecutive weeks. It touched the low of October of last year. However, the US dollar has been weak recently. As Sino-US trade relations heat up, the weaker dollar trend is to lead the dollar back to the United States and revitalize the economy. However, before this, the market will first rise to a certain level, and then it will fall again. The biggest beneficiaries of the biggest winners in this conflict of interest are always the United States. Therefore, even if the dollar falls, it can also use its gold reserves to stabilize the economy. Therefore, the short-term bullish opportunities are obvious. In the short term, you can risk doing more than one position at 1263-1264 and look at 1285-1290. Lido precious metals. The long-term line is short, look down to 1248.
